

Dianna Wright, Ph.D., is owner of The Wright Coach, a Personal and Professional coaching company dedicated to helping people develop and sustain excellence in all areas of their lives. She received a Ph.D. in educational Psychology and Sport Sciences through the University of Tennessee and the University of California, Berkeley. She brings over 25 years as a coach, performance psychologist, and teacher. As a successful athlete, she was chosen as a candidate for the 1976 Olympic Volleyball team. She is an avid runner, cyclist, and backpacker. Dianna integrates her personal growth and development and her depth of knowledge and experience into her practice as a practical way for people to explore, discover, and achieve the results they want in their life. Because of her athletic and corporate background, Dianna realizes the value of vision, focus, clarity, commitment, and discipline to create and sustain high-level performance.

Please visit her website at www.thewrightcoach.com or call for further information @ (916) 456-5350.